Association Meeting Set For Lexington

Most of the nearly 600 Kentucky Army and National Guard officers are expected to attend the annual National Guard Association Convention March 14 at the Phoenix Hotel in Lexington.

The association, composed of officers from various components of the Army and Air units in the state, will conduct business sessions, elect officers for 1964-65, and attend a banquet and military hall.

Lexington businessman and civic leader Penrose Ecton will offer the banquet address before the group and other featured guests included Governor Edward T. Breathitt and State Adjutant General Arthur Y. Lloyd.

General Lloyd Is Reappointed Adjutant General

Nearly 500 Kentucky National Guardsmen, wearing black armbands noting the death of President John F. Kennedy paraded by a reviewing stand on Capitol Avenue in Frankfort in honor of the newly elected Kentucky Governor Edward T. Breathitt.

The occasion was the Governor's Inaugural Ceremony December 10

After the parade, Governor Breathitt broke a 108 year precedence by reappointing Major General Arthur Y. Lloyd as the Adjutant General of Kentucky for his second 4 year term. No Adjutant General has been reappointed for a second tenure in the past 108 years. In fact, the last 33 Governors had appointed a total of 36 Adjutant Generals. Before 1855, it was the custom for one Adjutant General to remain in office through several administrations. For example, Adjutant General Percival Butler was appointed by Kentucky's first Governor in 1792 and he held that post for 22 years, through the administration of five Governors.

At the inauguration parade, Colonel Harold B. Travis, Executive Officer of the Selective Service Section, was the Parade Marshal and Brigadier General William R. Buster, Assistant Adjutant General of Kentucky served as Parade Marshal for the military portion of the parade.

Both Army and Air National Guard aircraft flew over the parade route. Guard participation included a marching element of the Kentucky Air National Guard and the parading of Battery B, Fourth Howitzer Battalion, Campbellsville, during December and January, composed an impressive formation for administration of the oath of office as National Guardsmen.

The group, all of whom will enter the Guard as part of the new flexable training program, will serve for an enlistment period of six years.

The men, largest single group to receive the oath of office at one time for the local unit, were sworn in Jan. 18. First Lt. John F. Moore, of Greensburg, Battery Executive Officer, conducted the ceremonies.

THE AG SPEAKS

Since our last issue a new Governor has been inaugurated Our new Governor. Edward T. Breathitt, has already proved to be an energetic, active Governor with a will to accomplish goals which will make Kentucky a better and greater place in which to live.

With Governor Breathitt, it is my pleasure to begin my second four year term as our Adjutant General. The nast four years have been very setive challenging, and characterized in many changes in the National Guard You have successfully met the challenges and demonstrated the value of the Kentucky Guard by progress in carry field. These accompolishments are creditable to one or two people but may accurately be attributed to "team" effort of the Military Deparment and the Kentucky Guard.

It has always been interesting to note what can be accomplished by a group of people if they set their minds to a common goal. As always, it only takes a few persons with the "I don't care" attitude plus a few pulling in the opposite direction to bring any project to defeat.

I point this out for we have two projects confronting us now in which I wish to ask everyone in a position of leadership to give their full support. One project involves strength, and the other concerns the National Guard Association of Kentucky.

As for our unit strength, Major General W. P. Wilson, Chief of the National Guard Bureau, has strongly urged that each State attain and maintain maximum authorized strength throughout the remainder of this fiscal year. I assure you that this requirement is of utmost importance to the National Guard as a whole

Here in Kentucky the present trend is very encouraging. Kentucky has been gaining in strength at a steady and even pace. During January we had a net increase of 124 men, and considering the reports of most of February, we should reach our total authorized strength soon. To do this, those units presently understrength must recruit vigorously and those now at full strength must maintain that strength.

Our goal is our authorized strength and we must put forth our best efforts to incore that we accomplish this goal. As for the second project-the National Guard Association of Kentucky. This is the organization which represents every Kentucky National Guardsman at both the local and state level. is for the betterment of the National Guard and its personnel.

This organization represents you with the State Legislature, by actively supporting legislation which improves the condition and status of National Guard

During the current session of the legislature several bills have the support and guidance of the Association as well as this office. A few examples include the bill to provide greater and improved benefits to persons injured or killed while on State active duty; the bill which provides for distinctive license plates for autobiles owned by Guardsmen; or the bill to provide for the reemployment of public employees called into active service. All of these are examples of the Association's support of your interest.

The important consideration here is that the Association is only as strong as you want it to be. Through your active support, the Association will have more influence and will speak with authority when it represents you. To be successful, the Association needs your personal and financial support. Therefore, I urge every officer of the Kentucky National Guard to be but also to actively participate in its conferences and support its policies.

In closing, I urge not only unit commanders but also all Guardsmen to provide their support toward keeping each Guard unit at full strength and encouraging active participation by Guard officers, in the National Guard Association of Kentucky.

Weekend Drills Well Received

Most Comments Are Favorable Toward Training Experiment

By SP5 Renald P. Thompson 133d Public Information Detachment

Attendance, enlistments, training and morale increases are the apparent initial result of Kentucky's experiment with the weekend, back-to-back drill schedule. "A lot better spirit and training. . . . Reaction very good. . . . Attitude better. . . .

All enlisted men present. . . . Enlisted possibilities great. . . . Doesn't seem to make any difference . . ." are sample comments from Administrative Supply Technicians, officers and enlisted men scattered about the Blue Grass State.

month schedule because of extreme weather conditions only to receive complaints from EM who frankly and loudly proclaimed the advantages of weekend The experiment began when Kentucky became one of nine states selected to test weekend assemblies in place of nightly drills on a voluntary basis. Kentuckians began weekend drills in December, January and February.

Perhaps the best initial results came from Ravenna located in South Central Kentucky. The city is the home of Battery B, Third Howitzer Battalion, 138th Artillery.

First Sergeant Leonard H. Gould there reported: "We all like it just fine," and maintained that enlistments and drill attendance are "the best in two years."

Attendance, he said, used to range from 78 to 80 per cent per drill. "Now it's runing from 90 to 98 per cent with the higher figure being the most common," he said.

"Everything is picking up here . . . the men like it because they get to work with their equipment more," he said.

A sizeable contrast to Ravenna is Lexington, an industrial, tobacco, race horse complex in the central portion of the state.

Lt. Col. Stanton T. Smith, commander of the Fifth Target Acquisition Battalion headquartered there, told of switching his personnel back to the old one-night a week schedule because snowstorms blocked the area and hampered use of outside areas for training purposes by Guardsmen.

"They (the EM) were pretty unhappy pretty quick," exclaimed Smith, who added: "Training is immeasurably more realistic."

The battalion's longer sessions now include planned bivouac sessions over

One Kentucky Battalion temporarily reverted to the old four nights a Saturday night with units returning to home stations late Sunday.

At Danville, MSgt. Stanley Lawson, 1st Sgt. and AST for Battery A, Third Howitzer Battalion, 138th Artillery, reported some "kinks," but "attendance very good."

"Most of our people are going to buy it," Lawson said, adding that the unit thus far has lost no personnel as a result of the weekend sessions.

In the Western section of the state, Lt. William Locke, a platoon leader in Hq. Tnk Sec and Scout Pl. Second Medium Tank Battalion, 123d Armor, based at Henderson, reported that the trial assemblies "doen't seem to make much difference to the men."

His unit, falling down on Saturday's because many men work at civilian occupations then, has satisfactorily kept up attendance by allowing "Equivalent Training" (ET) during the week or on the following Sunday with another unit of the Battalion

In Louisville, Kentucky's largest population area, Lt. Col Thomas J. Nortof, S-4 for XXII Corps Artillery said, "enlistment really great," and that armory use, in several separate areas, is on a seven-day a week basis.

Col. Nortof hasty to point out both disadvantages and advantages, said: "the advantages, training etc., far outweigh the disadvantages." He also commented on the increased income to Kentucky because of increased use of food, gasoline, and other supples which are purchased locally.

GUARDSMAN HAS UPS AND DOWNS LITERALLY - Capt. David Fleming, a pilot in the XXIII Corps Aviation Detachment, is pictured flying over the capitol dome as his helicopter approaches the Frankfort airport, Fleming is one of 21 Army Guard pilots who participate in weekend training periods which keep the men current on flight. The helicopter, an OH23B, is one of two based at the Frankfort airport.

"This is money being spent in every guard community that wasn't there before," he said.

"A few handicaps, but on the whole it seems to work pretty well,' said Sgt. Edwin Mundy. AST for Company B. 201st Engineer Battalion at Olive Hill

Mundy's unit has "three or four men on the swing shift, which forces some ET, but since the week end assemblies started we have even less ET," he said. In the Capitol City of Frankfort, home of seven hundred full-time Guardsmen acceptance seems fair. Many units there report 100 per cent attendance and like all Kentucky units, church services are held either in the Armory on Sunday or men are allowed leave to attend their own church. CWO2 George Karsner of State Hq.

and Hq. Detachment there reports "no complaints" from enlisted men and attendance levels very high. At the 413th Ordinance Co., primarily composed of full-time Guard employees attendance was also high, and cooks, normally caught up in dull routine maintenance of stoves, pots and pans and make-believe chow, practice their art at least twice a month.

"Kind of early to say, but we are getting along pretty well and most of (Continued on Page 5)

us like it better," said Capt. Jack W. Rees, commander of Company B, Second Medium Tank Battalion, 123d Armor, based at Paducah

ET there is performed on Sunday's and reaction is good as opposed to the nightly drills.

At Barbourville, Capt. Jack H. Ballard, Battalion Staff Assistant for the First Medium Tank Battalion, 123d Armor, commented: "we're very happy about the weekend picture so far."

"Overall, it's almost a unanimous vote for the weekend assemblies," he Company A., of the battalion is located in Harlan, Set. Bruce E. Owens AST for the company, reports average attendance around 96 per cent and that some personnel perform ET at a component "sister" unit in Middlesboro when necessary. "I guess a vote right now would see about 85 for and 15 against the assemblies," he said, but added that we seem to like it better all the time."

At London, Lt. James E. Moore, mortar platton leader for the Tank Section Communication and Maintenance Platoon, reports "We like it a lot better ... spirit and training are up and no one has quit because of the assem-

While the project at first glance seemed that it might adversely effect each and everyone of Kentucky's 5,000odd Guardsmen-and in most cases their families, employers and jobs, apparently the opposite is true.

Advantages of the change included more effective training-of sole and primary interest to the Department of Defense, National Guard Bureau and the Kentucky Guard-and the time element which would allow units to function more like their regular Army counterparts.

Kentucky Air Guardsmen have always been on the weekend basis and reports are always favorable with their EM who drive to Louisville from virtually every part in the state to participate.

One of several pointed disadvantages to the individual is the fact that most Guardsmen in Kentucky now end up with 14 days of continuous work (both civilian and military), without a day off and others, who work on Saturdays and are forced into an Equivalent Training situation are placed at work for 21 days without a break

Major General A. Y. Lloyd, the State Adjutant General, placed sample questionaires in the hands of officers and EM prior to the start of the program and after review predicted favorable acceptance of the program.

Gen. Lloyd initially pointed out that job conflict was of prime interest to both state and national officials since many guardsmen might have been unable to attend weekend drills because of conflicts which could cause loss of their civilian jobs.

By the same token, it was hoped that one group would offset the other if the weekend sessions appealed to those who up to now have avoided enlistment or acceptance of commissions because of their inability to attend week night drills with any degree of regularity.

Response to the offer of the series was widespread, with requests for over 250 films coming from nearly 100 coaches across the state.

The films were originally produced by the National Guard Bureau for distribution to all Kentucky TV Stations. They had not been used since the series ended about three years ago. In the films, Wilkinson interviews visiting professionals who are tops in their fields, and each film also contains two 1-minute commercials promoting the National Guard.

The film covering basketball techniques and practice tips was the most widely requested, followed (in decreasing order) by gymnastics, baseball. track, tennis, football, bowling, golf, diving, boxing, figure skating, and Present plans call for the films to

Paducah Guard Technician Dies Of Heart Attack

E-2 2.86 E-1 E-1 (under 2.60 4 mos)

First Sergeant Charles (Buddy) Hartwell, 39, of Paducah, died Nov. 22, 1963, of a heart attack. He was the second person to enlist in Company B, Second Medium Tank Battalion, 123d Armor, and had served for 10 years as administrative supply technician for the unit.

Services were conducted Nov. 25 at the Lone Oak Church of Christ and burial services were at Oak Grove

Cemetery at Paducah. Military funeral services were conducted by officers and men of companies B and D of the battalion.

A native of St. Louis, Mo., he was a veteran of World War II, a member of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars, and was commissioned a Kentucky Colonel. Survivors include his wife, two sons, a daughter, his parents, grandparents and three sisters.

Tons Of Clothing Collected In Drive

Reports collected midway in the Kentucky National Guard Clothing Collection Drive indicate that several tons of clothing had been collected by Guard units across the state.

The February drive, designed to provide assistance to those in need, is a co-operative effort with the "Save the Children Federation," a national organization with district headquarters in Knoxville, Tennessee.

The clothing collected is to be airlifted or trucked from assembly areas in Kentucky to a Federation warehouse in Knoxville. There it is to be sorted and distributed in the Appalachian Region of Kentucky.

The clothing is to be airlifted from Louisville and Lexington in a C-97 aircraft of the Tennessee Air National Guard. Commercial carriers will truck clothing from Paducah, Madisonville, Bowling Green, London, and Ashland,

GREETINGS-Seasons Greetings were extended via signs on the side of Kentucky National Guard 1/4 ton and 3/4 ton trucks which were loaned to the Post Office to assist in the delivery of mails during the Christmas Rush. The signs were used on nearly 40 vehicles in Lexington for about 30 days prior to Christmas. In the photo, C. R. Howard, Lexington, delivers parcels to a business in Lexington's Lafayette Shopping Center from a vehicle assigned to Headquarters Battery, 5th Target Acquisition Battalion.

Appliation For Guard OCS To Be Accepted Until June

Enrollment for the seventh class of Officer Candidate School is underway. according to Major William C. Morris, Commandant of the OCS school for the Kentucky National Guard. "We have programmed for a maximum enrollment of 50 candidates this time," Morris said. The deadline to sign up for the course has been set at June 1.

The candidates training in the Kentucky National Guard has been set up in three separate phases. The first phase begins and is completed during the two week training period at ANACDUTRA at Camp McCoy, Wisconsin, Phase 2 consists of eight weekend training assemblies which are conducted at the Armory in Frankfort. These drills are held in lieu of drills which the candidate is normally required to attend with his parent unit.

Phase 3 is a two week training period similar to Phase 1 and will be conducted during ANACDUTRA 1965.

If a candidate holds a rank less than E-5 he is promoted to that rank for the duration of his attendance in OCS.

Major Morris urged any enlisted men, interested in attending the OCS School, to contact his unit commander immediately.

SCOUTS TOUR KyANG FACILITIES: Over 500 Boy Scouts from 19 Kentucky counties recently toured Kentucky Air Guard facilities at Shewmaker Air Guard Base, Louisville, Col. William H. Part Time, Temporary Employment

"Specialist needed. Military experience required. Moderate income. Good working hours. Paid vacation, Gulf Coast. Call Mr. Edwards, 386-0326."

Sound attractive? It did for a lot of Louisville residents and Mr. Edwards, actually M/Sgt. Howard Edwards of the 123d Tac. Rec. Wing, Kentucky Air National Guard filled in the

More accurately, the ad, run in the Louisville Courier-Journal, might be translated as follows:

Guardsman needed, military experience a must. Income variable depending on vacancies, rank. Working hours consist of a weekend a month, maybe longer. . . . much longer. You uget paid like everyone else for two-weeks active duty at Gulf Coast (or some other Air Force Base) in United States.

Incidentally, the ad got results, "A greater response to this medium of advertising than any other method which has been used," according to Deputy Wing Commander Col. Verne M. Yahne.
